

Financial Assistance

If you care for community cats, help is available for getting affordable or free food and shelter.

If you are caring for community cats, there are ways to find support that can help you get affordable, or free, food and shelter.

Cat Food

- Visit a local food bank or pantry such as that sponsored by No Kill Louisville
- Ask your local market or pet supply store to donate broken packages or dented cans.
- Ask your local market for slightly out of date packages of food. They should be good for several months after the sell date.
- Ask local vet clinics if they have extra or out-of-date cat food they are willing to donate.
- Hold a cat food drive! Your workplace, church, civic or youth groups may be willing to help.
- Ask local markets or pet supply shops if you can set out a bin requesting cat food donations.

Shelters/Cat Houses

- Build an inexpensive shelter ... find instructions on our website.

Veterinary Care

- CareCredit offers a revolving line of credit for veterinary expenses.
- Feline Veterinary Emergency Assistance Program – This program provides financial assistance to guardians who are unable to afford veterinary services for their cat or kitten.
- The Pet Fund – Provides financial assistance to owners of domestic animals who need urgent veterinary care.
- Work with your vet. Some vets may be able to work out a payment plan with you.
- Contact friends and family and fundraise.
- Plan ahead and start a savings plan.
